ELKS' HOUSE RAISING

GLENDALE MEN BUILD BUNGALOW IN A DAY FOR INVALID

A house in a day is the notable accomplishment of a group of enthusiastic Glendale workers who, under the direction of a committee of Elks, actually constructed a four-room residence, not to mention the garage, on Stanley street, between Second and Third street, on Sunday. This good old-fashioned house raising was the neighborly act, entirely free from all charge, of friends who sympathized in this thoroughly practical way with the affliction which befell Mr. Frank Nell of 119 East Third street. Mr. Nell, who is 68 years of age, had purchased lumber for his new home and had it on the ground, intending to do the work of building himself as he is an experienced contractor and carpenter. Immediately after his misfortune had befallen him Mr. C. E. McPeek learned of the situation and without delay took the matter up at the Elks' meeting on Monday evening, November 19. Quick action followed. Mr. McPeek was appointed chairman of the committee of three, with Mr. W. E. Heald and Mr. Harry Miller, to prepare for the event, and before the week was out Mr. Ryan had completed laying the cement foundation and Mr. J. Kober had finished digging the cess pool. On Sunday morning a force of carpenters and builders, under the direction of Mr. L. F. Kirri, appeared on the spot where they proceeded very promptly to work a transformation. At noon the refreshment committee, with Exalted Ruler Albert Pearce as chairman, assisted by Mr. Stanley Frentz and Jo Fortunato, were enabled to serve the very excellent lunch they so generously provided on the well laid floor with the structure of the new house rising gratifyingly about them. The later afternoon saw the carpenter work and inside plumbing entirely and most satisfactorily finished. There remains only the completion of the plumbing, which will be done by Mr. McPeek, and the painting and interior finishing which will be contributed by Mr. Ernest A. Bode. The house will be wholly completed for occupancy before the first of December, according to present plans and progress. Mr. Nell is now in the Methodist hospital in Los Angeles, but it is hoped from his improvement that he will be able to move into his new home at that time. The men who were actively at work on the job Sunday, in addition to the busy refreshment committee, were: Messrs. C. E. McPeek, L. F. Kirri, G. C. Beach, W. S. Hartley, J. S. Cleeland, P. A. Wells, E. H. Kirri, E. W. Farrand, S. Godard, J. A. DeMuth, R. M. Morrow, W. P. Blair, J. F. Smith, R. S. Heugs, S. F. Baker, W. E. Heald, H. M. Miller, Logan Fairchild, J. M. Hunter, C. Sunkes, Stanley Frentz, J. Fortunato and W. E. Andrews.

COMMUNITY CONCERT

The community concert on Saturday evening was well attended and proved most interesting and successful despite the unexpected absence of Mr. Spencer Robinson who was called away by a telegram at the last moment. Mr. des Plantes of the Presbyterian choir did very creditable work as leader of the singing.

Mrs. des Plantes played a composition of Chopin's.

Mr. des Plantes sang, "I Hear You Calling Me."

Miss Frank recited a sketch of the deacon who fell from grace, and responded to an encore with "Opportunity," by John J. Ingalls.

Miss Mottern, who was the pianist for the evening, played a piano solo.

Note No. 2. This work seems to need a thorough organization and a definite plan. Why can't we have a committee of citizens who can work with our leader and outline something definite and let us vote on their plans, or change them to suit the needs of the singers?

In Kansas they are circulating music something like the books in our circulating libraries, in different communities.

Let's get busy! Let's make the most of this splendid chance to get together and sing as we used to in those good old days "When You and I Were Young Maggie."

We'll soon need to be ready to sing "When Johnny—no, not Johnny—When Sammy Comes Marching Home"—and who could better greet him than a well trained community choral society.

LIBERTY BREAD

MRS. HAZZARD WILL GIVE DEMONSTRATION AT CITY HALL TOMORROW

A U. S. Government demonstrator will teach the making of Liberty breads to all interested Glendale residents on Tuesday morning from 10 to 12 o'clock in the council chamber of the City Hall. Mrs. Jessica Hazzard will demonstrate these Liberty breads, using various substitutes for part of the wheat flour.

She talked last week in Glendale at the City Hall to a group of 70 interested women about what our government is asking us to do in conserving the food supplies necessary for our armies and allies, and all who heard her at that time are enthusiastic over the clear and practical manner in which she demonstrated.

Mrs. Hazzard, in the service of the U. S. Government, is lecturing and demonstrating through Southern California before various groups of women. Her headquarters are with the State Council of Defense, 719 Hill street, Los Angeles.

The city management has very kindly offered the use of the council chamber and extra chairs and installed an electric oven for use in the demonstration. An urgent invitation is extended to all to be present—Glendale City Unit, Council of Defense.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR CHARITY BALL

Glendale Commandery No. 53, Knights Templar, will hold its third annual charity ball in Masonic Temple, Brand boulevard, on Wednesday, November 28. The officers and members extend a welcome to every citizen of Glendale to come and enjoy an evening with them. There will be good music and refreshments. If the past is any criterion a most enjoyable evening is assured. In these times of war and disturbance, when so many good causes have been presented to the public for financial assistance, we are apt to overlook our own home city. Like all other cities, Glendale has its needy to care for, and it is for these worthy cases that the entire proceeds will be spent at the Thanksgiving and Christmas season. Tickets can be purchased at Crofton's shoe store, or at the Masonic Temple on Wednesday evening.

MATINEE DANSANT A SUCCESS

On the afternoon of Saturday, November 24th, Miss Edith Lindsay gave a delightful "Matinee Dansant" which proved to be a remarkable success. The dainty little girls showed such grace and artistic ability, the audience went in raptures, and both Miss Lindsay and her pupils received many compliments. The first hour was given entirely to class work, which thoroughly proved to the audience the splendid training they are receiving. This was followed by a delightful matinee. Little Barbara Chandler, aged four, pleased with a charming pantomime, "Catching a Butterfly," and "Finding a Broken Winged Bird." Barbara Blech did a "Fantastic Polka" which was particularly appreciated because of her excellent "Dutch" character sketch. A clever "Dutch" character dance followed by Sarah Chandler and Margaret Fox. Dorothy and Kathleen Woods repeated their recent success, "Humoresque," Kathleen as a "whistling boy" in smock and tamoshanter, and Dorothy as a demure little girl. Lois Naudain followed in "A French Doll," which everyone thought was splendid, with "La Coquette" following. Thelma Salter and Margaret Brown danced the "Pavlova Gavotte" in charming dresses of Louis XV period. Barbara Blech, Marjorie McLouth and Sarah Chandler, in dainty slips of pastel coloring, carrying garlands of fern and roses, danced to Valse Lente, Deleables, and made a series of exquisite pictures. By special request Miss Lindsay danced a "Gavotte from Mignon," made popular by her while in San Francisco the past summer. This closed the delightful program.

A grand march followed, during which most attractive favors were distributed—Red Cross caps which were designed and made for the occasion. A half hour of social dancing followed.

A most appreciative audience was present and showered Miss Lindsay and her pupils with congratulations. These matinees will be repeated from time to time, the next one to be given by the Hollywood class which is composed mostly of prominent children of the screen—Carmen de Rue, Viollet Radcliffe, Raymond Lee of the famous Fox kiddies, and many others.

LENINE'S PEACE PROPOSAL UNPOPULAR

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

PETROGRAD, November 26.—The abolition of the titles of nobility was announced by the Bolshevik "government" today. The same proclamation also announced that the government would confiscate all corporate property of nobles, merchants and burgesses.

It is suggested that no proposal of peace be issued unless Germany is pledged not to send an army to the Slav front against the allies.

THREE SAMMIES DEAD IN FRANCE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, November 26.—The death of three American soldiers in France from various causes was announced officially today. The dead are:

Private Joseph L. Boyce, Pittsburg, died November 11 of heart disease.

Bugler Marion F. Stoddard, infantry, Silver Springs, N. Y., died November 15, of an accidental bullet wound.

Corporal Horace Foulds, Newark, N. J., died of nephritis.

AMERICAN OFFICERS ARRIVE FROM FRANCE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

AN ATLANTIC PORT, November 26.—Rear Admiral Fletcher and his staff, Major General J. F. O'Rian and his staff and five other American army officers arrived here on a French liner today.

Maj. General Charles Treat, commander of the Ohio troops, was a member of the party. All hurried to Washington.

Gen. Treat declared that mud, rain and cold were the worst enemies of the soldiers in France. "We are going to take our time in getting into this war," he said, "but when we do we are going to clean it up."

CAMBRAI AND QUEANT TOTTERING

BYNG'S TROOPS ARE HOLDING BOULON RIDGE AND MENACING THE SURROUNDING COUNTRY

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES AFIELD, November 26.—Gen. Byng's great drive today started Cambrai and Queant to wobbling from the great cracks in the Hindenburg line and the constant battering of the British troops. Prince Ruprecht's garrison at Queant, the head of the switch line is almost surrounded.

Cambrai is useless to the enemy. It is cut off from Queant. The British are holding Bourlon Villa. The dominating heights of Boulon are saturated with German blood spilled in the mad attempt to retake the promontory. Whoever holds this ridge can menace the land for miles around.

The woods have been literally blasted away and the villages ruined. This entire German sector is rocking from the shock of the British battering ram.

KAI SER MAKES OVERTURES TO JAPAN

WOULD PERSUADE NIPPONESE GOVERNMENT TO RETIRE FROM PARTICIPATION IN WAR

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

AMSTERDAM, November 26.—Germany is again attempting to turn Japan from the Allies but Japan has bluntly refused.

It is reported that the Kaiser has offered Kao Chao to Japan and announces his willingness to discuss the future of occupied islands in the Pacific as the price of Japan's retiring from the war.

BIG ROBBERY IN CLEVELAND STORE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

CLEVELAND, November 26.—From $25,000 to $35,000 were taken, and three watchmen were bound and imprisoned in the vault all night by safe blowers, who blew the safe at the Higbee company's store here. Thousands of dollars worth of furs and leather goods were taken also. The robbery was discovered today.

LA FOLLETTE HEARING POSTPONED

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, November 26.—Senator Pomerene has postponed indefinitely the hearing on charges of disloyalty of Senator La Follette, it was announced today.

A BIG JOB

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB CIVICS CURATOR OUTLINES WORK FOR SECTION

At no time in the activities of this department has there been more urgent need of earnest, united effort for the betterment of conditions than now. With the consolidation of the cities of Tropico and Glendale come greater obligations and greater opportunities.

The surroundings of our city are picturesque and grand. Through the mountain gap a mile from the center of the city we come to our extreme northern boundary as we enter the historic Verdugo canyon, a vast shadowy recess wherein is garnered the immense supply of pure mountain water with which our valley is refreshed, giving us the best and finest water system in the world. To the north are the grand old Sierras and on the south and west on the banks of the Los Angeles river are the bright verdure-clad city parks of Los Angeles, Elysian and Griffith. The people of this valley are indeed favored.

Two direct roads connecting San Francisco and Los Angeles, Hollywood and Pasadena, cross each other in our city, therefore it is to our interests to show a good front to passing motorists and promote the idea of the CITY BEAUTIFUL. How can this best be done?

1. Improve the dangerous crossing at Central and Tropicana avenues and improve Tropicana avenue.

2. Build a new passenger depot at the crossing of the Southern Pacific and Pacific Electric, with park surrounding.

3. Add the remainder of land in block to Cerritos avenue school and improve the school grounds with necessities and comforts.

4. Improve Tenth street between Glendale avenue and Brand.

5. Place street signs on two sides of lamps so they may be read from both approaches.

6. Have all switching at Brand and Broadway done on Brand, and prohibit autos from parking within 25 feet of the corner. This intersection is always lined with autos and sometimes street cars, with the cars sometimes on the wrong track until they reach the switch at Maryland.

7. Appoint a Hooverizer to prepare the many vacant lots for sowing.

8. Put S. P. railroad grounds in shape to prevent them being a mud-hole in winter and a dust-hole in summer.

9. Ask the Pacific Electric to provide a shelter from rain and sun at San Fernando road for their patrons.

10. Report cases requiring charity to your nearest parent-teacher association. Or if you have anything that you cannot use and would be useful to some not so fortunate as yourself, send it to the P.T.A. They will place it where it will do the most good whether it be furniture, clothing, food or anything that can be used in the home.

What can you do? This is a big job. We can't do it unless everybody boosts. Will you help? The things we do with joy and enthusiasm are the things that count.

ELLA W. RICHARDSON, Curator Civics, Tuesday Afternoon Club.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB MEETING

The program of the Tuesday Afternoon club, which meets tomorrow at 2:30, Masonic Temple, will be in the hands of Mrs. F. P. Bicknell, chairman of Bird Conservation, Club Federation. Mrs. Bicknell's subject is "A Talk on Bird Life," and she brings to it a wealth of knowledge which she imparts interestingly. Too little is known of these wonderful little denizens of the air whose twitters and warblings bring a note of joy into our lives all unconsciously, and a more intimate understanding should be cultivated.

The first talk will be preceded by a group of bird songs by Mrs. Robert Yost. First, "I Hear a Thrush at Eve," by Cadman; second, two of Lehman's songs, "The Wood Pigeon" and "The Owl."

RED CROSS ENTERTAINMENT

One of the series of monthly entertainments arranged for the benefit of the Red Cross by Dr. Harrower is to be given this evening at the high school at 7:45 o'clock. A series of three or four one-act plays will be put on by the Modern Drama Players of Los Angeles, whose services are given without charge and were secured by the committee of entertainment of the Glendale chapter of Red Cross. An excellent performance is assured and a large attendance is expected. Admission will be 25 cents, with children admitted without charge.

The music, under the able leadership of Mrs. Sam Nabors, augmented by a large choir of young people, was a feature of the service, and especially delightful was the singing of Mr. Smith, who intersperses his message with appropriate gospel solos. He has a specially gifted and melodic voice which he knows how to use with great effectiveness.

It is freely predicted that the house will be taxed to its utmost capacity as the meetings progress. Mr. Smith speaks tonight on the very practical theme, "Has Every Man His Price?" Do not fail to hear him.

HAPPENINGS IN STATE

ATTORNEY GENERAL RULES IN FAVOR OF WOMEN ON GRAND JURIES

SACRAMENTO, November 26.—Women must be given an equal chance with men to serve on grand juries and trial juries, Attorney General Webb has ruled in an opinion issued to District Attorney Arthur W. Hill of Humboldt county. Webb declares that the statutes of 1917 require that the list of grand jurors to be selected by the superior judges and the list of trial judges to be selected by the supervisors must be composed of men and women. Hill had instructed the county officers of Humboldt county that the lists should include suitable and competent persons of both sexes and asked Webb for confirmation of his interpretation of the revised law.

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 26.—Wanted, by the state civil service commission, applicants to fill the positions of superintendent and assistant superintendent of the state bureau of criminal investigation and identification. The jobs pay salaries of $200 and $150, respectively. The examinations for these two important state positions created by the last legislature were announced by the commission several days ago and not a single application has as yet been received. The commission is worrying as to whether there will be any and has sent out a special call. Candidates must have a knowledge of classification and identification by the use of finger prints and Bertillon measurements. Applications must be filed with the commission not later than November 26.

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 26.—The state civil service commission has called examinations to create an eligible list from which to fill vacancies in the following state positions: Boiler inspector, industrial accident commission, December 22. Last day for filing applications December 17. Salary $1620 annually. Inspector, quarantine division, commission of horticulture, January 19. Last day for filing application January 17. Salary ranges from $100 to $125 per month. Assistant inspector of schools and nursing, bureau of nurses, January 3. Last day for filing applications December 22. Salary $1800 per year with traveling expenses.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 26.—Congressman Julius Kahn was addressing public school children at the exposition auditorium. Suddenly detectives noticed a nice looking, well dressed woman acting in a peculiar manner. First she held up one finger; then three; then two. Truly they must investigate—maybe the congressman was in danger. They investigated and found it was Mrs. Kahn signalling her husband as to how his voice was carrying under the acoustics of the hall.

GLENDALE, CALIFORNIA, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1917.

R. F. C. EXPERIENCING "TOUGHEST BIT OF WAR"

The Royal Flying Corps is the least advertised branch of the British Army. As the preface to a long interview on the work and achievements of that service, Maj. Gen. Sir David Henderson, head of the Air Board, explained the reason for this studied modesty.

"Other air services," he said, "advertise individual fighters and thus advertise the service. We don't because the fighting airmen is but a small part of the air personnel and not the most important at that. In many ways he has the best of the work. His part is the most spectacular and he gets the best machines."

"But a fighter is only sent up to protect the bombing, reconnaissance and range-finding machines, whose work is the most valuable. We believe that by advertising individual fighters we would kill the spirit of the other flyers. Our system gives us a higher average standard. With a week's notice we could transfer the personnel of a fighting squadron to a reconnaissance squadron, or vice versa, with perfectly satisfactory results."

"But what is much better, we have developed the spirit of the squadron. If you ask an airman back from the front how many Boche he downed he won't tell you. But he will say with pride: 'Our squadron got sixteen last week,' or whatever the number might be. That is the proper spirit for the service."

"And another thing, we don't go in for 'peace' or propaganda flying. We are too busy killing Huns."

Gen. Henderson then turned to the work of the Flying Corps.

"The Corps has multiplied between 70 and 100 times in men and material since the war began. We have had the heaviest air work of any of the Allies and just now are experiencing the toughest bit of the war."

"One reason for our large losses is that our polity has always been to get the jump on the enemy. It is costly, but the only policy if one has the means to pursue it. Some time ago the Germans realized this, as we established by orders found. But beyond short, spasmodic attempts, they have never succeeded in getting the offensive."

"The result has been that most of the air fighting is on the German side of the line and few are downed on our side. Even as far back as the Battle of the Somme we had the jump on the Boche. There was not a German machine within ten miles of the battle-line."

"An idea of the actual work of the service at the front may be gained from September's statistics. During that month we downed 139 German planes in air fighting and thirteen by anti-aircraft gunfire; downed 122 out of control, dropped 125 tons of bombs, took 16,000 photographs, directed artillery fire against 1,372 batteries and flew the equivalent of four and three-quarters years."

Gen. Henderson partially exploded the popular idea that the youngest men make the best flyers.

"For fighters, perhaps yes," said he, "but for the other branches of the service the older men, up to 35, are steadier, more persistent and exercise better judgment."

He was very doubtful about the practicability of extensive standardization of aeroplane construction.

"You may standardize your engine," he said, "but plane construction changes so rapidly that if you standardize for large scale production you are apt to find yourself with a number of antiquated machines on your hands."

RAILROAD SITUATION IN EAST SERIOUS

Congestion at important terminals is far worse in the East than along the Pacific Coast, according to Frank J. Miller, chairman of the Public Service commission, who has just returned from a visit to the Atlantic seaboard.

Miller's review of the situation is of particular interest now that the congested state of facilities in San Francisco and other important cities along the Pacific Coast are under discussion.

"People of the West," says Miller, "have no idea of the situation of the Eastern roads. The deferred maintenance condition of those roads is unprecedented in the history of the United States. They are entering the winter with rough roadbeds, high rail joints, rotten ties and poor equipment. Some of the roadbeds I passed over on what are supposed to be high class railroads are worse than the Western roadbeds after a heavy winter's use and they are just now entering the winter."

Factories are springing up everywhere overnight and unexampled prosperity is at hand, but the railroads are crowded to the limit. Factories are burning 25 per cent more fuel than ever before.

The railroads are experiencing particular difficulties in the East for lack of terminal and storage facilities. In the West we are confronted with a lack of cars. But in the great centers of transportation in the East it is practically impossible to get terminal sites, and their cost is almost prohibitive.

All the factors which confront the railroads of the East indicate that some relief must be afforded them and as near as I could determine the Interstate Commerce Commission is in the mood to furnish them some relief when they present the proper kind of application with the proper kind of showing.

The values of railroad securities are falling with such rapidity as to be of a source of great alarm to bankers in the East."

GRAZING FEES NOT INCREASED

No increase will be made in the grazing fees on the National Forests for the present, was the announcement made recently by the Secretary of the Department of Agriculture D. F. Houston, in letters to the officials of the American National Live Stock and the National Wool Growers' associations. The decision to defer action looking toward the increase of the grazing rates on the National Forests was made because of present war conditions, and the fact that the stockmen have been called upon to overcome many difficulties in order to keep up the country's supply of beef, mutton, hides and wool.

SO JAKE KEPT HIS REMAINS

The superintendent of transports put my name on the list and I continued to wait. Then, one night came the notification to report at a certain dock at noon the next day. Next morning, upon presenting my order for transportation, the dock officer shoved a slip of paper across his desk. "Just fill that out, please."

It was a government blank with neat spaces for the name and address of a nearest relative. I glanced at the officer. "Sign it, please he said.

It was no joke.

Several captains of artillery were seated around the table filling out and signing the same cheerful slips. They were keenly intelligent men and knew that the United States government was not doing this for fun. Yet they laughed and twitted one another with the same take-things-as-they-come spirit which our American forces are carrying abroad. None of them balked like the Virginia negro who applied for a job at the Hopewell munitions plant.

The clerk was asking questions and writing down the negro's answers on a blank.

"What is your name?"
"Jake White, suh."
"Where do you live, Jake?"
"Valley o' Virginny, suh."
"Citizen of the United States?"
"Yes, suh."
"Over 21 years old?"
"Dat's what mah ma say."
"Where do yo uwish your remains sent?"

"Jake leaned over the desk. "How is dat boss?"
"Where do you wish your remains sent?"
"I don't wish my remains sent no-

Mrs. Nanno Woods gained several dollars on Saturday evening for the benefit of the Eagle Rock Red Cross, by reading her patriotic poems at an entertainment given in the Eagle Rock schoolhouse. Ten minutes were occupied in reading the poems, and during the succeeding five minutes upwards of $5 was secured through the sale of these poems. Mrs. Woods is willing to accept invitations to read and sell her patriotic booklets at any meeting, concert, P.T.A. or other form of entertainment, the proceeds to be devoted to whatever Red Cross work the inviting organization is undertaking. Three of six patriotic poems have emanated from Glendale war incidents: "Mothers of Men" refer to two Glendale mothers; "A Call From Camp" is woven around letters received from Glendale and other soldier boys; "Today, Not Tomorrow" is dedicated to the Ninth Co. C. A. C. These poems are appearing simultaneously in British newspapers, and are certain to be accorded an enthusiastic reception.

CHAFFEE'S NEW BREAD

Beginning Wednesday, Chaffee's grocery will put out a new bread known as "Multigrain" that is going to be popular every day in the week, they say. The recipe for this delicious loaf was worked out by scientific methods and the result is a toothsome and wholesome combination of barley, oat, rye, wholewheat and graham flours. Wheatless days will hold no terrors for Chaffee's patrons once Multigrain bread is on the market.

They Are Well Pleased

SAMMIES LIVE WITH FRENCH PEASANTS

Mrs. M. S. Corey, of 235 South Louise street, whose son is Herbert Corey, the well known war correspondent for the Associated Press, has in her possession a very complete history of the war, as her son has been at the front since the beginning of the world conflict. Among the many interesting descriptions she has received is the one printed below giving a picture "from the inside" of our American boys as they are living in France:

On the way home last night the car nipped through one of the little villages in which our troops are quartered. A very little village, this one. The old stone houses shoulderered up to the very edge of the road, presenting on either side a wall unbroken by an opening. There was a bench of sorts in front of almost every door. It was just at dusk, when soldier and peasant alike had finished the day's work and eaten dinner and was disposed to talk and cigarettes and meditation.

So that every bench held its soldier in front of the house in which he was billeted. Sometimes the bench was shared by the proprietor, a peasant too old to fight, even too old to be a territorial and guard a bridge. Before the war the old man had retired from active life, leaving to his son the work of carrying on the farm. Now he is back in the sabots. Sometimes one of the women of the house sat with the soldier. Often a youngster was there, staring at him with wondering eyes, puckering his lips to imitate the unfamiliar tongue.

Little by little the smaller people of France are learning American. Not a boy or girl one passes on the street who has not a word or two. They call "good night" after one—not in the objectionably sarcastic tone which the greeting would carry in the States—or say "America" or "hello," or any other of the words of the newly-gained vocabulary. If the war lasts long enough the smaller people of this part of France will be fluent in United States talk.

Americans and French Agree

This scene of homely domesticity can be duplicated in almost any village in which the Americans are billeted. They get along beautifully with their hosts. In their turn they are picking up French, so that when the boys come home again there will be a violent outburst of foreign languages in every restaurant that has a French dish on the menu. The folks at home are hereby warned. They had best go to studying French themselves, to be on even terms with their educated brothers when the boys come back. The soldiers are not studying French very hard, it is true.

One is not fit for great intellectual activity after six hours on the drill ground and fourteen miles on the road. But one by one the new words sink in.

This billeting is a new game to the American army. Our soldiers have lived in a good many different styles of quarters—grass huts in the Philippines, "dobe houses" in Mexico, igloos in Alaska and tents in the West—but they have never before been "billeted" as is required by the conditions of the war in Europe. The 750 men of a battalion, for example, may be billeted in a little town that in peace time does not number more than 400 or 500 inhabitants. It is not big enough to have a doctor.

They are scattered around among the houses. The house owners are paid, so they have no complaint to make. On the other hand, the payment is most welcome. A room is turned over to the men, in which the billeted squad put up their camp beds—an unheard of luxury to a European soldier—and roll out their blankets, and dispose of their various little knick-knacks and make themselves at home. Sometimes a peasant man or woman may be found sitting in a corner of the billet, studying these strange folks. We are a source of wonder to the natives, just as they are to us.

Soldiers Clean up

Often the billet is a stable or a hay or wagon shed, but it must be borne in mind that these terms indicate something quite different than the stables or haymows we have at home. The fond mother who pictures the snow blowing through the cracks between the clapboards upon her Willie may be reassured. The stable or the haymow is a part of the home over there. Sometimes it is almost the best part. All it needs is a thorough cleaning and it is fit for its new purpose.

And it gets it—that cleaning. It isn't scoured—it is polished. The stones of the floor are scrubbed and rescrubbed and the beams of the ceiling are swept. Then all that is done over again. The billets are inspected at regular intervals by the sergeants and the company officers, and the battalion major gets around at least once a day to see that the inspection has been thorough. Woe to every one from the captain to rear rank man if a burned match or a cigarette butt is found on the floor at inspection time. More woe if the beds are not in order and if equipment is scattered about. The quarter deck of a yacht is a fussy and untidy place compared to a soldier's billet, the relative opportunities for untidiness being considered.

In the French army the soldiers are forbidden to heat their billets. Nor is that emphasis laid upon cleanliness being considered.

liness that there is with us. It is safe to say that in the larger rooms, where the men can spend their spare time, there will be oil stoves or some other means of heating furnished. Barracks will be built, too, in which the men can mess. At present they eat their meals on the street in fine weather and in the billets when it rains. This is not desirable. The Y. M. C. A. huts will furnish them a common meeting and loafing place, when they are built.

The American officers were little doubtful of the billeting plan. The men are not as directly under control as they have been in barracks, but experience has shown that it works perfectly. The French officers fairly hold up their hands when they see the shinily clean billets and the camp beds and the thick blankets of real wool and the warm overcoats and the care taken of the men. As the visiting major said today after his tour of inspection:

"Your men live like kings."
"Nothing too good for 'em," said our major.

WEST GLENDALE SOCIAL

About 135 members and friends of the West Glendale M. E. church spent a very enjoyable evening last Friday night at the church. The congregation sang "America," followed by a prayer by Rev. E. C. Crandall. Miss Nell Hilbert gave two beautiful piano solos, and little Shirley Chase gave two very enjoyable readings; then came "Sharley and Kathleen," two Dutch lovers (being in person Marjory Singleton and Geneva Mulligan) which pleased the audience immensely with two very clever songs. Miss Terry, teacher of oral expression class of G. U. H. S., gave two very pleasing readings. Mr. Leo Goode of the Broadway Store music department gave two beautiful vocal solos, and was accompanied by Miss Chapman, one of Glendale's accomplished musicians. Mrs. Van Leuven of Burbank pleased the audience by giving two clever Irish readings. Miss Eva Green, the sweet little whistler, gave two beautiful solos.

A collection was taken for the new carpet fund which the ladies of the Aid Society had purchased a short time ago.

The young people of the Epworth League conducted a candy and ice cream booth in the girls' room which furnished sweets for the young people, while the older folks enjoyed light refreshments in the social hall.

"What's the matter with your son, Edward?"
"Oh, he's the worst blockhead I ever saw. I taught him everything I know, and still he don't know anything."

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT—AND TOMORROW

Already our stunning offers on standard and high grade pianos, player pianos and grands are stirring musical Glendale and prospective purchasers as never before. The people begin to realize what we are trying to do.

There is no denying the fact that we have a large and carefully selected stock on hand far beyond what is usually carried in a place of this size. The quality of the instruments on our floor is of the best, sprinkled liberally with choice, slightly used bargains.

You have only to draw on your knowledge of past and current prices to realize that this is a fact.

There is no argument needed after you get to the store. The values speak for themselves most eloquently.

It is to our common good that we mutually patronize and build up Greater Glendale. We realize that. But we base our case purely on the ground of better values and better subsequent service than can be found elsewhere. And so we make good. Now, that is what you want, is it not? You want your good, big money's worth, and it is here waiting your selection.

For instance, a beautiful little grand any musician would be proud to own, one whose predecessor, an exact duplicate, took the Gold Medal at the Paris Exposition, and retails east and west at $650—take it along at $450. Only this one goes at the price. Do you prefer an up-to-date player at about the price the straight regular retail price? Seems too good piano of the same make brings at the to be true, but it is even so. The player brings $600, and that is fair enough, but one only is now offered at only $390.

At this unheard of price this player will not stick around long. It simply cannot.

Would you be best pleased with an A-1 straight piano, elegantly cased, of make and style that commands the respect and admiration of the best musicians?

It is on sale, reduced from $450 to only $290. Ask to see it.

Perhaps neither of these remarkable offerings appeal to you. Possibly you are looking for a good used piano and yet so little used as to be mistaken for new.

Well, we have at least three that meet this description to a dot. Their prices range as high as $400 and yet you can buy either of them under $250 owing to the amount of cash you put down.

Here is something you might look a long time to duplicate if at all.

A cabinet grand, sweet, full tone; used, but never abused, and it's in fumed oak, too. Original price $350, now only $157.50. Could you part with $100? If so we will give you a very good practice piano for exactly that amount, subject to exchange any time on any other piano, and we take the cartage.

Since the above was written we sold one more upright not advertised, to a very particular and well to do customer—and nibbles from all over town and out of town.

The drive is bound to be a success in point of numbers; that is already assured. We're cutting so close that shrewd buyers will grab up this stock while you are waiting unless you think it wise to get action.

It is up to you. Will you drop in tonight? You are welcome. Phone for machine.

THE MISSING DEACON

One of the prominent deacons in an Ohio church was seriously ill. As he was very popular among the congregation, a bulletin board was posted in front of the church to inform his friends of his condition. It read: "One o'clock. Deacon Jones very ill."

"Two o'clock. Deacon Jones is worse and sinking rapidly."

"Three o'clock. Deacon Jones is dead."

A traveling man passing by that evening read the bulletin and, seeing no one in sight, added at the bottom: "Seven o'clock. Great excitement in Heaven. Deacon Jones has not yet arrived. The worst is feared."

DOUBTFUL

An old negro woman, standing by the grave of her husband, shook her head and said mournfully: "Poor Rastus! I hope he's gone where I spec he ain't."
